and allowed the one run to come across for the Staunton aggregation. The third batter popped an easy one to Boone on second, retiring the side a minute after the run had crossed the plate on the

The game was much faster than the one on Wednesday, and was witnessed by a larger crowd. The grand stand was practically filled and there were many out in the bleachers to give cheer to the boys from Barton Heights. Staunton showed up with a strong list of rooters. They were scattered about in every part of the grand stand, and made their presence felt at the different stages of the game.

ones did the twirling for the visitors, and but for being a triffe wild, did excellent work. Team work is needed on the Staunton nine. The men play good ball, but they do not play together as well as they should.

Until the sixth inning Brooks had not allowed a man to reach second sack. And until the very end of the last inning there was nothing doing in the run line. One hit was gotten off Brooks in the sixth, another in the eighth and Tucker tore off a two-bagger in the ninth, and scored when Mills dropped the ball and allowed it to roll away from him. It was good base running on Tucker's part that saved his team from receiving the goose ess.

How the Game Went.

How the Game Went.

Barton Heights went to bat and Rose ripped a clean single. He pilfered sack No. 2, but died between second and third, when Boone landed on first with a fielder's choice. Mills drove a high one out to Timberlake in right garden, and there was a muff. Bache got against the leather for a safe drive, and Boone scored. Jones threw the ball away, and Hoskins scored. Hoskins had gone to fist on a complimentary pass. Phillips and Tritton fanned the air.

Boone, Barton Heights's second haseman, had the best of the star plays. His pick-up of Shieds's Aci liner in the first, together with his rapid throw to first, together with his rapid throw to first, together with his rapid throw to ming. Bache and Phillips brought the crowd up standing by effecting a beautiful double steal. Bache moving from second sack from first.

Boone didn't handle a line drive in the forth, but redeemed himself a min-time. Wearing a gorgeous jockey cap, Umpire Richard Duke, whose alias is Dick Duke, called the game promptly at 5 o'clock, and it was five minutes to seven when the last man was out. Jones has a peculiar delivery—one that requires about seven seconds to unwind—and this was responsible for the length of the game. Especially is this the case when a runner is on second or, perhaps, third. The box artist threw some wild one by attempting to pay too much attention to the runner and holding him at the base.

After one mga had taken the cemetery road in the seventh inning. Bache sent one with whiskers on it down to third sack. The throw was wild, but even had it been almed right, Bache would have been safe, for he had literally skimmed over the earth and beaten the ball out. On the bad throw he took second and was brought home by Philips's two-sacker to right, Again Jones was wild, and Craig couldn't get his digits on the sphere in time to save the run from crossing the rubber. With these two additional runs the home boys settled down, confident of the game. But in their half of the ninth, with the assistance of an excusable erros by Shields, another run was chalked up for Barton Heights.

Mills led off with and got to first, and then pilfered the second sack. Bache and Phillips axpired, and Tritton nalise the ball for a clean single, and Mills put his spikes against the rubber, bringing in the last run.

CONGRESS TO WORRY OVER PANAMA CANAL

Possible That Rate Matter and Tariff Revision Will Not Be Taken Up at Extra Session-Attitude of President.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.) WASHINGTON, D. C., July 27.—It is safe to assume that there will be an extra session of Congress, and that it will begin on the eleventh day of next November. It has been known ever since the expiration of the last Congress, on the fourth of March, that the mind of the President was made up to call an extra session this fall. While he is very prone to change his mind, and while great pressure was brought to bear on him to make him do so, it has been known all along that President Rooseveit was determined in his purposto have the Congress assemble a month or such a matter before the first Monday in December, the date fixed by the constitution. He had selected the thirteenth of November as the date for the assembling in extra session, but it is believed there is ground for the report that he has decided to have the senators and representatives meet on Saturday, the eleventh.

So much for the date. But by far the greater interest attaches to the object of the extra session. Nobody seems to know exactly the subjects which the President will name in the call. There is much speculation concerning it. Six months ago, it was believed the extra session would be called to deal with the subject of rate regulation exclusively. It was seen at that time that the sernate would not pass the Esch-Townsend bill nor anything like it, and the President was so determined, apparently, to secure legislation of this character, that there was not room to doubt that he would assemble the Congress in extra session, probably in the spring, for the purpose of enacting a law along lines indicated in his message of last December.

The Panama Canal.

But about the time Congress adjourned. WASHINGTON, D. C., July 27.-It is safe to assume that there will be an

The Panama Canal.

The Panama Canal.

But about the time Congress adjourned, it became evident that there would not be a spring session, owing to the adoption of the Keene resolution, providing for sittings of the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce to Investigate the subject of rate regulation, for the purpose of formulating a bill. The committee sat for weeks. About the time its sittings were concluded, in May, the report went forth that the President would call an extra session for the purpose of securing tariff revision. This set the beneficiaries of protection by the ears, and since the time of the announcement there has been nothing heard of rate regulation.

deal of auxiliary legislation if the canal is to be dug, seems generally admitted. It is more than likely that the extra session will have to deal with canal matters. Perhans all of the time may be taken up with this one subject. The President is believed to fully realize the importance of securing the needed legislation as soon as possible.

It is considered quite likely that the subject of rate legislation, and the subject of rate legislation, and the subject of infir revision will not be touched subject of rate jegislation, and the subject of tariff revision will not be touched upon in the extra season.

Attitude of President.

Attitude of President.

Information as to the exact attitude of the President towards these subjects would be most thankfully received by certain large interests of this country. There is a belief that he has weakened on both. The pressure brought to bear to make him do so has been terrific. The railroad interests have kept up their hammering on him ever since last December. He indicated last May in his address before the Iringols Club. In Chicago, that he had not changed his HAS HIS SICK AND STARVING views, and was as determined as ever to bring about the enactment of a law which should give to the national government the power to regulate passenger and freight rates on all transportation it lines, and to fix all terminal charges.

The ultra protectionists, vuigarly termed "stand-patters," have sought to erfect a change of sentiment on the part of the President as regards revision of tariff rates. As late as the fourteenth of May the President gave positive evidences that he was a tariff revisionist, when Secretary Taft Issued a statement to the effect that certain supplies for the construction of the canal would be purchased abroad, owing to the fact that they could be secured more chappy from European manufacturers than from home producers. The President at once backed up this policy, and thus flung down the gauntlet to the oppoinents of inrift reduction. There is absolutely nothing emanating from the President since that time to indicate that he has undergone any change of heart.

Nor has he said anything or taken any action concerning rate regulation which would indicate a back-down. Perhaps, the fact that he has said nor done anything has caused the belief that he has changed his mind. The appointment of Ellhu Root to the position of Secretary of State could be construed as an act of friendliness to the railroads and trusts, but his signal honoring of the greatest corporation lawyer in the world need not be looked on as conclusive evidence of a surrender to trusts and corporate power.

these become the chief subjects of legis lation at the regular session.

New Rate Bill.

It is pretty certain that the rate bill which will be introduced at the next Esch-Townsend bill. This bill was very moderate, and had imperfections which could only have been overlooked in the hurry with which the measure went through the lower house. Hon. Leonidas Livingston, of Georgia, senior democratic member of the committee on apthrough the lower house. Hot. Leonidas Livingston, of Georgia, senior democratic member of the committee on appropriations, called attention to-day to the fact that the terms of the bill would make it possible for a Federal tribunal, such as that provided for by the bill, to abolish jim crow cars in the South, if their operation touched interstate commerce. While it is likely that this feature of the bill will be looked after, and the intent made plain, yet, it is not believed that any serious result could have come from allowing it to remain as it is. The State legislatures' have not any power now to enact legislation affecting inter-state. Commerce There is much doubt whether a State law requiring a negro who is traveling from a point in one State to a point beyond the State, to ride in the coach for colored is constitutional. A rate bill could not affect the question.
